Russian Freighter Seized In San Francisco Bay

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — A Soviet freighter has been seized at this San Francisco Bay port by federal marshals as security for a $377,000 damage suit filed by New England fishermen who claim Russian trawlers destroyed their lobster fishing gear. Four marshals boarded the

'A Complete Flying Hotel' Continues To Circle World

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The three Soviet cosmonauts today went into the fourth day of orbit aboard the world's first manned space station. The station was described in a Tass news agency report as "a complete flying hotel." The comment was made by mission control scientist Boris Raushenbakh, who painted a cozy picture of life on board Salute and said the cosmonauts had a whole library of their favorite books, a refrigerator, a vacuum cleaner and a stove. The cosmonauts carried out experiments today using observation and research instruments to examine phenomena of the earth and outer space. The crew of the space lab—commander Georgi Dobrovolsky, flight engineer Vladimir Volkov and test engineer Viktor Patsayev—finished their work Wednesday in mid-afternoon after spending the day getting their house in order and making sure their ferry craft would get them back home.

The schedule included tests on the systems of Soyuz 11, which docked with Salute Monday morning to form the space station. There are no indications yet when the crew intended returning. The three also carried out medical tests to find out their powers of endurance in weightless conditions over a long period. Then Dobrovolsky tried on a new-look space suit designed to counteract some of the effects of weightlessness. The close-fitting suit places a special load on the cosmonaut's body to make up for lack of gravity and counteract what a television commentator here called "de-training" of the muscles in conditions of weightlessness. The 60-foot long space complex was boosted for the second time in two days into a higher orbit Wednesday. It now is at a suitable vantage point for scientific observations.

Many American-Made Products Can Now Be Sold To Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today a broad range of American-made products that may be sold to mainland China, including automobiles, some industrial equipment, and most consumer goods. Ending a 21-year-old embargo on trade to the Communist country, President Nixon made public the list of exports that U.S. industry may ship to Red China under a general license, meaning the products can be shipped without further approval from the government. Nixon said the list includes most farm, fish and forestry products, tobacco, fertilizers, coal, selected chemicals, rubber, textiles and some metals. In addition, he said, agricultural, industrial and office equipment is included, as well

Suleyman Stalsky late Wednesday after the 53-foot vessel tied up to load lumber and other cargo for Japan. A notice of attachment was taped to the ship's wheel and a man posted on board. Prelude Corp. of Westport, Mass., claims Russian trawlers "with either malicious contempt or reckless disregard" have hauled their nets through gear of three Prelude vessels, destroying or seizing lines and lobster pots.

"The Russian government owns all Russian ships so we are seizing this one," said a marshal. Maritime law permits any of a shipowner's vessels to be held as security for a damage claim.

The lawyers for the lobster firm said the suit was filed in San Francisco because the Suleyman Stalsky apparently was the only Soviet ship in an American port without international immunity.

Capt. Anatoly Rogachev, 41, of Vladivostok, heard Cline's explanation of the seizure in his cabin, then poured a round of vodka for reporters who followed the marshals aboard.

The close-fitting suit places a special load on the cosmonaut's body to make up for lack of gravity and counteract what a television commentator here called "de-training" of the muscles in conditions of weightlessness.

The 60-foot long space complex was boosted for the second time in two days into a higher orbit Wednesday. It now is at a suitable vantage point for scientific observations.

Nixon also decided to sweep aside a requirement that American business must obtain government permission to export wheat, flour and other grains to China, Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

The Chinese export list appeared to parallel closely a similar list on exports to the Soviet Union, which has been in existence for some time.

Nixon said products not listed on the general license list may be considered for specific licensing "consistent with the requirements of U.S. national security."

Ottawa Plans Ban On Cigarette Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to regulate the amount of tar, nicotine and other substances in cigarettes and ban mass advertising was given first reading in the Commons today. The ban on advertising would extend to newspapers, magazines, radio and television, as well as billboards or signs. Retail outlets would be limited to displaying the product itself, which would have to carry a health-hazard sign. The prohibitions are backed up by penalties including a $100,000 fine and five years in prison. Cigarette packages would have to bear the label, in capital letters: "Warning: Danger to health increases with amount smoked, avoid inhaling." The bill introduced by Health Minister John Munro would come into force Jan. 1, 1972, if passed by Parliament. Cigarette packages would also have to carry in English and French a statement of the amount of tar, nicotine and other substances in the smoke. Vending machines would have to carry the same warning to be required for packages.

RESTRICT ADVERTISING The bill would restrict advertising of cigarettes to exposure in retail outlets, basic information on vending machines and, for manufacturers, signs at their plant or offices and on their vehicles. Promotion by manufacturers would be limited to passing out free cigarettes to employees for personal use, and using a sales talk to get retailers to buy the brand. Violation of the advertising and content limits could result, in conviction on indictment, in a $100,000 fine and five years in prison. A provision also is made for summary conviction, with a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and two years in prison.

EXEMPT-EXPORTS Cigarettes for export would not be subject to the law but packages would have to be marked. For export, imported as well as domestic cigarettes would be subject in Canada to the new federal law.

Those violating the warning provisions would be subject to a $5,000 fine and one year in jail or indictment, or a $1,000 fine and six months on summary conviction. Where a corporation was found guilty of an offence, any officer, director or agent who was involved would be liable to the penalties. The bill would empower the cabinet to:

—Fix the maximum amount of nicotine, tar or other substance in any cigarette product.

—Prescribe the manner in which the amount of those substances would be determined.

—Prescribe the form and manner in which the warnings would be placed.

Another prohibition would prevent manufacturers or retailers from suggesting, "expressly or by implication," that a cigarette isn't a health hazard because the new law requirements were being met.

Cholera Loses Some Of Sting CALCUTTA (Reuters) — The spread of cholera through the refugee camps of East Pakistan appeared today to have been contained as Soviet and American planes stood by to move some of the refugees to the interior of India.

Brig. Michael Blackman, the disaster's operations director for the British relief agency Oxfam, said today his team now has enough saline solution and vaccines on hand, although more might be needed later.

But occasional fresh outbreaks were still being reported from the disaster zone and relief teams worked to inoculate the living, save the dying and burying the dead.

"The general situation is pretty miserable with not enough transport or communications over long distances," said Allan Leather, Oxfam's deputy field director. "The government is trying to cope but it is under tremendous pressure and strain and its services just cannot cope with demand."

Special trains were assisting in the transfer of refugees. But many of the refugees were refusing to board the trains and others were reported jumping off along the way.

Meanwhile, refugees were reported still moving across the border from East Pakistan, including many middle class or Moslem small landowners.

There is still confusion about what is really happening in East Pakistan, but the influx of Moslem refugees suggests to observers an almost complete breakdown of the social structure in East Pakistan.

From about mid-May until now, about 90 per cent of the refugees have been Hindu, and it appeared that they were being driven out of predominantly Moslem East Pakistan in a religious clearance.

Canadian Assistance Sought A total of almost $2.5 million has been asked from or promised by various Canadian governments, religious organizations or relief agencies to aid

East Pakistan refugees pouring into India. The emergency aid includes cholera vaccine to help stave off an epidemic that has killed thousands and child-care programs for thousands more who are starving.

A contribution of $2,050,000 has already been made by the Canadian government. Other contributions and requests:

—$40,000 from the Canadian Council of Churches.

—$50,000 from the Mennonite Central Committee.

—$194,000 through the Canadian Red Cross.

—$60,000 from the Canadian Catholic Conference and the Catholic Organization for peace and development.

—$37,500 each asked by Oxfam Canada from the Quebec and Ontario governments.

OTTAWA BUYS VACCINE Oxfam of Canada Wednesday announced it has received $150,000 from the federal government to be used for cholera vaccine, and so production of enough vaccine for 200,000 persons could begin.

Oxfam sent all Canada's available vaccine, 20,000 doses, to India Monday.

Political 'Pressure' Hinted As Reason For Lack Of Action

Owners of resorts on Wood Lake have denied polluting the lake. They say pollution comes from water flowing into the lake; put the blame on area cattlemen, and say political pressure may be keeping action from being taken on this. About 25 members of the Winfield-Okanagan Centre Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night asked Dr. D. A. Clarke, medical officer of health for South Okanagan Health Unit to "put his authority where his mouth is and eliminate the causes of pollution in Wood Lake."

A brief prepared by resort owners and one by Art Bluet, one of two people who were especially singled out by Dr. Clarke as having been uncooperative, were adopted by chamber members following a one-hour meeting in the Winfield Community Hall. Mr. Bluet said the other man did not wish his name used.

On June 2, Dr. Clarke told the health unit and the Regional District of Central Okanagan boards, three beaches at the lake do not meet standards for water laid down by the B.C. health department. The health board authorized him to declare at least two unfit for swimming unless the water improves. These are in front of tourist establishments, and the other is the public beach operated by the Winfield Lions Club.

The MOH said the operator of a trailer park and tent establishment, identified Wednesday as Mr. Bluet, might be causing pollution through his sewage disposal system, and would not allow tests to be made on his land.

There are about 22 tourist operators in the Winfield area. The chamber has about 75 members.

The unit ordered Lions Beach closed last year, which drew criticism from various sources including the chamber.

'We're Not That Stupid...' "For two years tourist operators have been doing their best to set their own houses in order and stop pollution," exclaimed Sam Pestes, chamber pollution chairman. "No responsible tourist operator can be stupid enough to poison his own water."

Mr. Pestes also said Dr. Clarke "has decided not to clean up pollution caused by cattle on the Winfield Flats this year." He declined to reveal the source of this comment, but offered to publicly retract it if the doctor could prove otherwise.

The brief from operators points out everyone in the area benefits from tourism. They disclaim allegations that tourist operators have not co-operated in facing and correcting pollution.

They said the unit has tested beaches and placed dye in sewage systems. This dye would come out in test holes if sewage were seeping into the lake. Wood Lake is fed by streams, springs and irrigation ditches. It empties into Kalamalka Lake, which feeds Okanagan Lake.

Operators claim that if water coming into Wood Lake were clean, water in the lake would be, too.

"The public beach is a case in point. If no one used this beach last summer and it is still polluted, wouldn't it be a safe assumption to suspect the irrigation ditch which runs through the property?" the brief asks.

"The tests utilized to find pollution at the beach, we believe, were based on tests conducted last fall and winter. What caused this pollution during the cold winter months with the lake frozen and the beach covered with snow?"

"We doubt Dr. Clarke's sincerity because of the way he posted (declared unfit for swimming) the beach last year. Prior to the posting, the Lions Club received a call from him informing them of the possible posting. He offered them 24 hours to close the beach and initiate corrective action. That night while the club was preparing action, he posted the beach."

"Is this to be construed as anything but lack of sincere interest on the part of Dr. Clarke in the well being of the people he is hired to serve?"

The brief claims there are more houses along water courses that feed Wood Lake than along the lake itself, and numerous cattle are kept close to the water courses.

"At our last meeting with Dr. Clarke we presented this to him. His only answer was that the livestock association is a very strong lobby and he would not like to attack this area."

U.S. And Canada Make Attempt At Plan To Clear Great Lakes

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States join in an effort today to lay down a broad program to remedy pollution in the lower Great Lakes.

Looming large over the heads of high-level delegations from the two countries is a solution to the question: Where is the money coming from to pay for it.

A key part of the program calls for expansion of the International Joint Commission as an anti-pollution watchdog. The U.S. section needs funds to expand its staff, and the money must come from congressional appropriations, but political hurdles could slow up the process.

The IJC estimated in January that it could cost the United States $1.4 billion and Canada $211 million to improve municipal and industrial waste treatment facilities and take other steps to reduce pollution to an acceptable level in Lake Erie and Lake Ontario and keep the lakes and international sections of the St. Lawrence River clean.

As a result, cost-sharing arrangements have been a major part of discussions between the two nations which preceded today's conference, being held in private at the state department.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, who will become environment minister, head the Canadian delegation, accompanied by some 20 federal advisors.

Bourassa Outlines BNA Aims

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Wednesday a constitutional amendment recognizing Quebec as a "participating government" in certain international agencies will be discussed at next week's federal-provincial conference in Victoria.

He told the national assembly's committee on inter-governmental affairs that senior Quebec and Ottawa civil servants had discussed the question two or three times but that no mutually acceptable text had yet been agreed upon.

Mr. Bourassa would not say if the proposed amendment was prepared by the Quebec or the federal government.

The premier said his government will stand firmly for the right to be recognized as a real participating government in certain agencies but the federal government does not wish its authority in foreign affairs to be deeply affected.

Oswald Parent, minister without portfolio responsible for inter-governmental affairs said the question would be settled "if the document could be accepted by Quebec."

Montreal Police Kill One Youth MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police shot and killed one of two armed youths fleeing from the scene of a $100 drug-store holdup in the east end Wednesday night.

The youth, whose identity was not disclosed, was shot three times when he ignored police orders to drop his sawed-off rifle. His companion surrendered quietly.

Pipeline Debated

WASHINGTON (CP) — A bill that would tie up the proposed Alaska pipeline project in further public hearings and congressional debates was scheduled to be introduced in the House of Representatives today by a staunch opponent of the pipeline.

Les Aspin, Democratic representative from Wisconsin, with the support of nine co-sponsors from seven states, announced in a news release that his bill would require the U.S. interior department to issue another "draft statement"—its second—about the impact of the pipeline on the environment.

Search Goes On For Missing Pair

The search for the bodies of the president of the Saskatchewan Liberal Association and another Saskatoon businessman was to resume today near a sunken aircraft in Buffalo Pond Lake, 15 miles north of Moose Jaw. R. W. Thompson, the Liberal association president, and Norm Caswell disappeared when their float-equipment plane sank in the lake. RCMP divers found the aircraft about half a mile from shore Wednesday and a jacket belonging to Mr. Caswell, owner of the plane, Mr. Thompson had been in the Moose Jaw area in connection with the June 23 provincial election campaign.

About 200 inhabitants of Fillicudi, a fishing island, returned Wednesday after receiving guarantees from the Italian government that the exile of 15 reputed Mafia chieftains to their island was only a temporary measure. The islanders left 11 days ago to the island's banishment of the "Mafiosi" to their island. Premier Emilio Colombo promised Monday the government had "other solutions under study." They had claimed that their fishing industry should not be turned into a Mafia paradise, chasing away tourists.

tional survey of 30,000 households by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the federal health department. The results were major factors in anti-smoking legislation approved by the federal cabinet. Health Minister John Munro gave notice of the bill on the Commons order paper Wednesday. Under the rules, it could be introduced Thursday at the earliest.

A petition applying for incorporation of a new bank called the United Bank of Canada was introduced in the Senate in Ottawa Wednesday by Senator Hedard Robichaud (L.-New Brunswick). The petition caused a slight stir on Senate benches, heavy with directors of established chartered banks, but there was no formal comment. Once the petition is read, possibly today, a private bill for incorporation will be introduced by Senator Robichaud.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Wednesday that he has every reason to believe that the upcoming constitutional conference will be "the most successful one yet." He said there is bound to be some difference of opinion at the conference to be held in Victoria June 14-16, as there has been at other conferences he has attended during his 19 years as Social Credit leader of British Columbia.

The 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal in Newark, N.J., has ordered Edgar H. Smith Jr., who has spent 14 years on death row, returned to Trenton state prison while New Jersey tries to overturn a federal court ruling that granted him a new trial. In an opinion announced Wednesday the three-judge appeals court held that the state must complete its arguments against a new trial for Smith by July 12, the date Smith must be either re-tried in the murder of a girl or released.

Attorney General Leslie Peterson has restored to Westco Insurance Co. its licence to write automobile insurance in British Columbia. E. T. Cantell, superintendent of insurance in Victoria had earlier refused to renew the firm's licence because he said Westco had refused to accept assignments under the government assigned risk plan and issued policies which didn't cover theft of car tape recorders and tapes.

A six-month-old boy tossed out of a second-storey window by his father Wednesday in New York during a family argument was caught by his godfather who happened to be passing by, police reported. The child, Jeffrey Delgado, appeared to be in good condition but was taken to hospital for observation. The father, 39-year-old Fred Delgado, was arrested on charges of attempted murder, assault, endangering the welfare of a child and resisting arrest. The baby's godfather is Sam Macchio, 58.

Locked doors barred an escape route for crew members aboard the ill-fated Norwegian cruise ship Meteor, a Meteor stewardess told a coroner's inquest Wednesday in Vancouver. Esther Roska, 22, said the doors were locked at night to prevent crew members from going into the passenger section of the ship. Some bodies were found against one of the doors after 32 crew members died in a fire aboard the ship May 22 as the Meteor steamed down Georgia Strait toward Vancouver at the end of an Alaskan tour.

"Fuddle duddle," a little boy said as Prime Minister Trudeau passed in a parade Wednesday in Hamilton. The prime minister, hearing the expression with which he roused the ire of opposition members in the Commons, chuckled. "You shouldn't say that," he replied.

PYTHON AT TAILOR BRINGS A FINE

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Maurice Britz was fined $25 for pointing a python at a tailor.

Britz, 22, told the police court that he left his jacket with the tailor to have six Hell's Angels badges sewed on it. When he picked up the jacket, a Blue Max badge was missing.

The tailor said he knew nothing about the Blue Max, so Britz got Freddie, his nine-foot pet python, waved the snake in the tailor's face, saying, "Freddie will find out the truth."

The tailor called the police, and they charged Britz with assault.

WON'T BE ENOUGH OKANAGAN GRAPES

Although the 1971 grape crop is estimated 1,500 tons above last year, it is not expected to meet the demand from B.C. wineries, reports L. R. Stephens of Kelowna, secretary of the B.C. Grape Marketing Board.

The crop is estimated at 10,500 tons. About 90 per cent of the 1970 grapes were used by the six wineries last year, but their demands have increased.

Price negotiations open Saturday between the board and wineries in the Capri Motor Hotel. For the first time, if negotiations are not through by June 25, either party may seek arbitration.

In Court

A Kamloops man who said he "finds it hard to make a living without driving" pleaded guilty this morning to two charges of driving while prohibited, one for impaired driving, and one for consuming liquor in a public place.

Reginald Howard Stubbs was seen driving erratically Wednesday night on Highway 97 near Winfield, and drinking beer in his car. He was returned to the police station, and it was learned he was suspended from driving until the end of this month. The first offence of driving while prohibited occurred March 31 on Water Street. Judge R. J. S. Moir remanded the matter to Friday.

Neil David Kiene of Kelowna admitted driving early this morning while the alcohol content in his blood exceeded .08 per cent. He was in a two vehicle accident near Rutland. The fine was $200, and he was told not to drive for 30 days.

Two Rutland youths involved in a fracas with two other youths denied charges of assault causing bodily harm. They were remanded to July 19.

Terry Bruce Ricketts and Robin Ricketts were charged with kicking and punching Thomas Martin Gordon, and the first youth with the same to Gordon Fretwell. Another youth charged in both cases has not been found.

Richard John Underwood of Kelowna admitted speeding Wednesday night on Highway 97, and was fined $50.

In an effort to accommodate a person who had driven from the northern part of the province with a witness thinking a case would go ahead today, it was adjourned to this afternoon.

Gary Charles Fawcett denied attempting to steal a car May 23. Lawyer J. K. McLeod said he was told Wednesday by police that the trial would be held today, so Fawcett came to court and bring a witness. Crown prosecutor Sgt. John Graham said one of two police witnesses was available, and a Crown lawyer had not been named, but police have authority to use a city legal firm in emergencies.

A charge of driving without insurance was withdrawn against Leonard Louis Pierre of Pentiction.

Matthew Johannes Dhont, who said he recently came to Kelowna, pleaded guilty to not having a municipal commercial license plate for his vehicle. However, the judge dismissed the charges because no evidence was given it was a commercial vehicle.

Allen Lindgaard denied obtaining groceries worth $5 and $2 cash in July, 1969, from the Winfield General Store with a worthless cheque. The case proceeded immediately.

PM Rejects Plea For Funds Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau rejected today an opposition demand in the Commons for an investigation into alleged mismanagement of funds by State Secretary Gerard Pelletier's department under the opportunities-for-youth program.

Assistant divisional co-ordinator Yvonne Hayden outlined what help is available to branches. Assistant commissioner Colin Evans also attended.

Delegates from Pentiction, Naramata, Summerland, Keremeos, Oliver, Armstrong, Cawston, Okanagan Falls and Kelowna attended the meeting. Regional vice-president Alfred Howlett of Vernon presided.

RESORT OWNERS' REPLY

"Is it unfair to assume that Dr. Clarke, the supposed champion of the fight against pollution in the Okanagan, is subject to political pressure and is yielding to it? Does the fact people related to persons in high political office have cattle in watersheds that feed Wood Lake have anything to do with Dr. Clarke's lack of interest in facing the problems of the creeks and of Duck Lake?"

Operators said they took health unit employees to Vernon Creek and Beasley Irrigation Ditch, two water courses feeding the lake. They saw manure on banks, and cattle in the water. The unit ordered some manure removed.

"Dr. Clarke stated his job is not so much to fight pollution as to find and publicize it. We say this is not enough, and he has not even properly or fairly publicized pollution."

Dr. Clarke asked the chamber to buy a testing machine, but was not willing to guarantee sources of pollution. R. E. Woolman, chamber secretary, reported he wrote MLA Pat Jordan saying the chamber would buy the machine but the province ought to provide the money. No answer has been received. The brief suggests a program be started to eliminate pollution.

Mr. Bluett admitted ordering a health inspector to leave his land. This occurred July 1, and he said he did it because he thought the unit should not be paying the person overtime for holiday work. He later found out the person was a student working for the summer and not getting overtime.

Unit officials dug a test hole on the land Wednesday, and put dye in toilets. By 7 p.m., no dye had shown up in the test hole, which will stay four or five days.

Mr. Bluett said he wrote Avery King of Pentiction, health board chairman, that he is willing to initiate corrective measures if he is found to blame.

He listed bacteria counts in four areas on Winfield Creek, which also feeds the lake. "These would indicate problem areas. I feel the unit should take action to prevent high coliform levels in creeks before threatening closure of beaches."

He has asked the B.C. Motel and Resorts Association to ask the provincial health department to have engineers investigate the problem.

Mr. Bluett charged people developing a subdivision near him got no permit to divert the creek. When banks washed out, damaging his land, provincial authorities ordered them to correct the matter.

One man suggested taking Dr. Clarke's name from the briefs. However, others said the area has received bad publicity from him for two years, and this was the only time they have fought back. The MOH was invited to the meeting, but said he had another commitment.

Copies of the briefs will be sent to Premier Bennett, the B.C. health and agriculture departments, and the B.C. Motel and Resorts Association.

Art Pitt read the first brief. President Gus Reich presided.

Tests on the Kelowna incinerator will be part of a study on the Okanagan water basin. The $234,000 study is being done by the faculty of applied science of the University of B.C. as part of the federal-provincial study.

Engineers want to know if lime added to raw sewage would burn the incinerator.

They will also calculate how much phosphorous, nitrogen and other nutrients get into the Okanagan water system from septic tanks, garbage dumps, fertilizers and other sources. These promote algae growth. Sewage plant effluent will be applied to soils to find how much remains as ground water.

Vernon effluent will be spread on about 120 acres of farmland to see if nutrients in it can be used as fertilizer on a large scale.

A $30,000 computer is being constructed to determine how much water is available, and how to regulate it.

This is the second study by the faculty under the program. It started last month and will end in the fall.

Contract Awarded

A Vancouver firm, Lance Construction Ltd., has been awarded a $26,800 contract for installation of office partitions in the new federal building in Kelowna.

Public works minister Arthur Laing announced the successful firm submitted the lower tender, the high bid being $38,500. The installation will provide a laboratory for the department of agriculture which is one of the occupants of the building and office partitioning for the other departments on the second and third floors.

Plans and specifications were prepared in the Vancouver district office of the department.

Another Team Qualifies

A mine-rescue team from Kaser Resources, Fernie, qualified Saturday for the B.C. mine-rescue finals, which will be held in Kelowna next Saturday.

The Fernie team, headed by John Peterson, defeated three other teams to take top honors in the southeastern B.C. mine-rescue and first aid championship.

Two other teams from Grandview Mines, Stewart, and from Bluebell Mines, Tiondel, have already qualified for the provincial finals.

The winner will appear in the national finals in Edmonton later this summer.

Alisia Ziegler Service Tuesday

Funeral service will be held from St. Pius X Church, Tuesday for Alisia Ziegler, 143 Aspen Court, who died Saturday at the age of 59.

Mrs. Ziegler is survived by her husband Joseph; three sons, Matthew, John and Rudolph in Kelowna; one daughter, Mrs. Joseph Sovinski in Kelowna; 10 grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Joseph Buchman in Kelowna; and one brother, Sebastian Moser in Germany. She was a member of the St. Pius X Church Catholic Women's League.

Prayers and rosary will be recited today at 8 p.m. in Day's Chapel of Remembrance.

Rev. R. D. Anderson and Rev. C. P. Mulvihill conducted services with interment in St. Theresa's Cemetery, Rutland. Pallbearers were Joseph Buchman, Joseph Roth, Joseph Klechko, John Germann, Edmund Turk and Lambert Schell. Day's Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

IMAGINATION AND HARD WORK

Construction To Start

Construction of the first homes on the West Kelowna Estates subdivision is expected to begin soon, it has been announced.

The development is on the Bear Creek Road, off the West-side Road on the west side of Okanagan Lake. It is about two miles from Highway 97, and four and a half miles from downtown Kelowna. The company is owned by Jack Witt and Jack Scott. Agents are Carruthers and Meikle and Apple Valley real estate companies.

Of about 320 acres, about 40 acres have been used to make 77 lots in the first phase. These went on sale about two weeks ago, and 50 are sold.

They are 90 feet by 150 feet, with some 90 feet by 200 feet, large enough for Veteran's Land Act mortgages. School bus pickups are made three-quarters of a mile away.

Two Plead Guilty

Three of eight Kelowna people were remanded to July 14 in provincial court in Pentiction on charges of breaking, entering and theft.

Steve Richard McDougall, 17, and Matthew Allan Orr, 18, pleaded guilty and were remanded for sentence. Leonard David Lucas did not plead. The five others are juveniles, and were to appear in court in Kelowna.

The eight were arrested in Kelowna Sunday afternoon following a break-in at the Firestone store in Pentiction. Entry was gained through a back door, and goods worth $2,000 were taken.

Mysteries Of Yoga

The mysteries of yoga will be explained at a public meeting here today.

Shyam Acharya, a native of India, will speak at 8 p.m. in the First United Church Hall, Bernard Avenue and Richter Street. Shyam Acharya has practiced yoga for 35 years.

After receiving his bachelor of commerce degree in 1948, he became a reporter with the Punjabi legislative assembly. He came to Canada last year and is married with five children.

Maybe ...

Friday was expected to be mainly sunny, with today being cloudy in the morning accompanied by a few showers or thunderstorms this afternoon. Kelowna temperatures Wednesday were a high and a low of 67 and 43 with a trace of rain. Today was expected to reach a high of 72 with a low of 45, and a high of 72 Friday.

Flooding Unlikely

There is little chance of flooding in Kelowna area this year, it was reported Wednesday.

"Flooding is still a possibility but not a probability," said civil defence co-ordinator Harold Whitehouse. "The level of Okanagan Lake and creeks emptying into it is not as high as we thought it would be."

Mr. Whitehouse explained more snow has melted into the ground and less into creeks than was expected.

Last month water levels and snow packs in the Okanagan area were higher than in 1968, when there was flooding all over B.C.

The level of Okanagan Lake continued to rise this week, however, and was listed at 101.69 feet for comparison purposes, more than half a foot higher than the previous week but still less than the agreed maximum of 102.5 feet.

Meanwhile in Kamloops, civil defence officials are prepared to move "almost immediately" if levels of the north and south Thompson rivers continue to climb.

Water Safety Discussed

Red Cross water safety programs for the Okanagan this summer were outlined at a regional meeting of the Canadian Red Cross Society here.

Okanagan water safety supervisor Dick Chambers said 37 programs involve about 10,000 children from Mica Creek to Osoyoos. He stressed the importance of public awareness of water safety.

Director of youth services for B.C. - Yukon Divisional headquarters, Bill Mitchell, explained the importance of Junior Red Cross work. Okanagan field supervisor Mrs. M. Norman showed work done in area schools.

Assistant divisional co-ordinator Yvonne Hayden outlined what help is available to branches. Assistant commissioner Colin Evans also attended.

Delegates from Pentiction, Naramata, Summerland, Keremeos, Oliver, Armstrong, Cawston, Okanagan Falls and Kelowna attended the meeting. Regional vice-president Alfred Howlett of Vernon presided.

Kelowna Girl Lights Torch

Gloria Whittle, 13, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Syd Whittle of Rutland, a girl who won six out of six events in her native province, touched off the Canadian Olympics in Toronto for retarded children Wednesday with a torch to light the Olympic ceremonial flame.

An attendant, however, had earlier taken the precaution to guarantee there was fuel. In deference to Miss Whittle he turned the flame down, out of sight until she applied the torch. Then he turned it up into a searing flame.

The events are designed to show that these children can achieve a level of competition with the proper encouragement. Teams from all Canadian provinces and some United States areas were represented.

It was estimated that about 1,500 were in the Olympic-style parade in Canadian National Exhibition Stadium. There were about 5,000 spectators in the stands.

FIREMEN'S CHOICE

One of six candidates to be featured in the Miss Rutland IV competition is blue-eyed brunette Erica Koetz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Koetz, Gallagher Road, Rutland. Miss Koetz was born and raised in Rutland and at the present time is a student at Rutland Secondary School. Besides keeping busy on the farm her parents own, Erica is musically-minded as she plays the piano and performs in the school band. She is sponsored by the Rutland Volunteer Firemen.

Short Takes

The things you learn! The annual nowfall record for the world was set this past winter at Mount Rainier National Park in Washington with .0115 inches—almost 93 feet—early burying the three-storey Paradise Inn.

In the shops in Vancouver recently we noticed transparent plastic umbrellas decorated with bunches of flowers. Not painted on, but artificial flowers attached. In all colors, of course, to go with milady's outfit. Impractical probably, but smart definitely. Now that more variety in color is being seen in men's shorts and ties, more shades in suits and slacks, we propose that the trend be extended to include variations of the big, black, male-type umbrella. It'd be worth a rip to London to see that typical London business type walking briskly down the Strand carrying a broily decorated with brightly-colored artificial flowers. But, then, why are we worrying about broilies here? We've to use for them in the Okanagan. Or have we?

One of our pet irritants is receiving a letter which commences: "The letter you are now reading is probably the most significant to have ever crossed your desk." It is something more than presumptuous for a letter writer to decide what is "most significant" to the receiver. Personally I can think of a dozen other letters which would be much more significant to me than that which I have just put in the wpb.

For those who are interested, according to Kelowna's lawn-watering bylaw, even-numbered houses may have their hoses on on even-numbered days; odd-numbered on odd-numbered days. Of course, it really doesn't seem to matter. Many people seem to observe the bylaw in the breaking of it.

Toronto now has several sidewalk cafes, legally serving drinks. In this province, come September 1, you won't be able to mention the stuff let alone drink it in a sidewalk cafe.

We've often thought a sidewalk cafe would do well in Kelowna where the girls are the prettiest—if it could get a liquor licence. In those "backward" European countries it is a delight to sit in one with a sandwich and a glass of beer, watching the world go by.

Once upon a time, Kelownians boasted that there was not a mosquito in the city. Not so these days. In recent years the control has slipped but this year it would seem there isn't any at all. If there is, the insecticide had better be changed because it doesn't seem to bother the mosquitoes. They are big and healthy and gather in hungry swarms.

It is 34 years since the Duke of Windsor married and lost his throne. He still clings pathetically to his affection for his homeland and has asked to be buried there. In compassion's name, is it not time when this old man and his wife should be invited to spend their remaining years in England? After all, a cold-blooded murderer is pardoned in much less time.

The Position Of Ontario

With the federal-provincial constitutional conference less than a week away, Premier William Davis is having difficulty convincing his critics that being pro-Ontario doesn't infer an anti-Ottawa policy.

In recent speeches, Mr. Davis has said Ontario will always strive to achieve a strong Canada while reserving the right to criticize and try to change federal policies that it feels work against provincial interests.

But no matter how he says it, his speeches have been criticized as leaving the impression that Ontario is after Ottawa's scalp.

Opposition members in the legislature say Mr. Davis is promoting an anti-federal platform for the next provincial election to detract from problems at home. One high-ranking New Democrat said, with some agitation: "Good grief, if he means what he says it's the end of Confederation."

Specifically, Mr. Davis is seeking a bigger share of federal revenue and greater control over telecommunications, now a federal responsibility. Both involve constitutional changes which are indirectly a part of the June 14-16 conference in Victoria.

Ontario Revenue Minister Eric Winkler, who entered provincial politics after serving five terms in Parliament as a Progressive Conservative back-bencher and party whip under former prime minister John Diefenbaker, mentioned speculation that Ottawa will use pressure to force de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. to relocate its Toronto plant in Montreal in a merger with Canadair.

"They use as an excuse that unemployment created at Canadair is much greater than unemployment created at de Havilland. On the other hand de Havilland is a greater plum for any province to have than Canadair."

"So the question I would pose publicly is this: Is the federal government wilfully, with federal money which is largely Ontario money, taking de Havilland out of the province of Ontario and placing it in the province of Quebec? If this happens, I think the province has a legitimate right to get up on its hind feet and howl."

Mr. Winkler said the problem is that Ontario cannot control its own fiscal destiny "and if the federal government sees fit to turn the tap off on us and drain more off the top . . . we haven't got the power to resist."

But Premier Davis' dilemma remains two-fold. If he squawks, he can be accused of playing politics at the expense of Canadian unity. If he doesn't, he can be accused of sitting idly by while the federal monolith drains Ontario in the interest of eliminating regional disparities.

S. PANDOSY FUTURE

Sir: Happy days, and here we go again. People canvassing from door to door with backward plans on keeping their own lot out of the jurisdiction of the city bylaws, and all intent on preserving their septic tank and polluted water. Don't though attempt to put your foot into my door whoever you or they may be. You, the people who live on the fringe and just outside the city limits, be careful what you are signing when you affix your signature to these half-cracked schemes.

Listen rather to progressive planning by going forward, joining the city, belonging and sharing the facilities that will be offered to people that come in. Don't for heavens sake let us have an impasse such as happened before when a few of the old school countered a petition in the South Pandosy area to join the city five years or more ago. These same people that resisted progress then have since died or moved away, leaving the legacy of polluted wells and septic tanks to the younger people and the children.

Now I have written of this before and I know a few of you will say—Here we go again—but in your hearts you know if you face yourself that these heavily populated areas on the fringe of an up-and-coming city like Kelowna, as it is today, that you should come in, join, all go forward together. It's the biggest cinch in the world that you can't stop progress.

Please don't give me the other side of the taxation story—i.e. our taxes will go up—Yes they might but they're going up anyway, and you aren't getting anything for them. At least if you go city, get your services in, your property values shoot (even well ahead of your taxes) for those people in business sections arguing about increased taxes it's a business expense, likewise deductible.

In the meantime may I say good luck to any plans the City of Kelowna may have in just taking in any area which cannot under a health measure level up to standard (under the Oberlander report civic law 1967 this can be done, the city has power and authority to take over an undeveloped area for development) because as sure as God made little apples, the congestion in and on the fringe areas isn't going to get any better.

When you get a large commercial undertaking on the edge of the city boundaries, what do you get? Just backwash. People of the Benvoulin, South Pandosy commercial district, the people that live in these areas are the ones I want to talk to. Do you think that Orchard Park, the new complex development on the highway, is going to be without sewer and water—bet you a pound to a pinch of snuff its mooted if not already. They go in the new areas because they know to join is to belong. If you are an orphan you haven't any parents, all you can do is shout loud enough until someone adopts you.

Mr. Editor I won't thank you for your space in your newspaper, because I intend to keep writing until something is done about the matter.

Very sincerely,
GEORGE STROHM

Egypt Almost Entirely Beaches But Tourists Just Won't Visit

CAIRO (CP) — Egypt is one long beach, starting from the Libyan border and stretching all the way to the Red Sea.

It has health resorts said to be capable of helping rheumatics and those suffering from various allergies.

It is cheap for the tourist.

Should it not then be a tourist mecca?

But in the best year the country had from tourism, about 600,000 persons came in 1966. After the 1967 Middle East war the figure dropped to almost nothing, although it now is up to about an estimated 400,000 this year.

Why, despite the continuing Middle East tension, has not tourism grown here?

"Zionist anti-propaganda," says Ahmed Dawish, minister of tourism.

Western and Egyptian officials agree that the tourist potential of Egypt is such that it could be as good or better hard currency earner for a hard-pressed economy than a reopened Suez Canal or perhaps even the oil industry.

"Tourism could be the salvation of the Egyptian economy," says Dawish.

Yet the country does not draw as many tourists as tiny Cyprus, not far away. And Spain draws 27 million a year.

SWIM YEAR-ROUND

The country is setting out to rectify the situation as fast as it can produce services.

President Anwar Sadat is attempting to interest Western European tourist officials in the long coastline, said even by North Americans to have the best beaches in the world.

The country can offer swimming all year—the Mediterranean in the summer and the Red Sea in the winter.

Dawish, a former professor at the medical school in Alexandria, says there is a dark Zionist plot to keep from the world the news of the potential of his country.

But he says this will be overcome by word of mouth and that every person who visits Egypt will become its greatest advocate.

"We have everything, but we have urgent need for public relations so people will know what kind of people we are."

He says Zionist "anti-propaganda" may depict Egyptians as warlike, but any tourist would say that the average Egyptian is a humane fellow seeking only peace.

While tourism now is picking up, the big spending

American, the one sought by everybody, still is staying away. At one time Americans made up 10 per cent of the tourists. Now the figure is only three per cent.

And while official figures may show an improvement in tourism, it is not shown in the grim faces of the men in empty bazaars, or of the guides who take tourists to the pyramids, only nine miles from the centre of the city.

"Once we had 1,000 out here every morning," says one guide. "Now we have about 35."

Some of the tourists now are Russians, and everybody here says they have no money. In fact the best way to get rid of a persistent operator of a bazaar who will follow one down the street begging him to come into the operator's shop is to say "Russian."

"The Russians go into the bazaars and barter bottles of vodka," said one American. "But how many bottles of vodka does an Egyptian need?"

Dawish is spending money when it is available to acquire more accommodation and to improve admittedly inefficient travel services. His greatest fear, he says, is that word will get around too soon about Egypt.

"If five million tourists descended on us this year we wouldn't know what to do with them."

AN AMERICAN EYE-VIEW

Just Don't Touch Monarchy Seems Average British View

With controversy boiling in Britain about the Queen's request to Parliament for more money, Kenneth L. Davis, veteran Associated Press correspondent who has been in London since 1963, takes an American's-eye view of the monarchy.

By KENNETH L. DAVIS
LONDON (AP) — The late ex-king Farouk of Egypt once quipped: "In 10 years there will be only five kings—the king of England and four others in a deck of playing cards."

Britain still has a queen and a few other monarchs are left but Farouk had a point: Monarchs in the 20th century are in a precarious position.

Today's monarch must keep busy lest his country find it can get along without regal protocol and yet he has to gauge how conspicuously he can consume without sparking envy.

The House of Windsor is adept at the game of public image. At present, however, it is treading gingerly through a bad patch as a result of a request by the Queen of Parliament for more money. Anti-monarchists would like to think the throne is in slight jeopardy, as a result, but any bookmaker would give you odds that that assessment is not correct.

PUBLIC DIVIDED
Britons who care enough to choose up sides mirror the public division in letters to newspapers.

"Let those who worship the Royal Family subscribe to the Queen's rise in allowance," said F. Webster of County Durham.

"The Queen should have a pay rise," said Mrs. Dawson of Leeds. "I wouldn't swap places for all her money. I bet she would love to be free like me and go to the club and play bingo."

"If we can't afford free milk for our kiddies we can't afford any increase to a very wealthy family," said F. Donovan of Manchester.

"I live in poor circumstances, can afford only one hot meal a week," said Mrs. A. Eustace of London. "If you wish to reward me for still being British send the money to the Queen to help her maintain the traditions of this country."

BRINGS A RETURN

Pinned down, many Britons would be hard-pressed to express its benefits. But royal contributions seem to be at least cash and color. The pomp and pageantry surrounding the court lure tourists. The royal personalities are rated good at selling British goods abroad, by indirectness.

The stately processions and protocol brought down from ancient years doubtless lend color to the lives of the people tied to factory or flat.

As a tradition, the monarchy lends a sense of continuity, of an anchor that doesn't drag with each ill wind.

The current royal drama really started in New York. In a 1969 television interview there Prince Philip offhandedly disclosed that Buckingham Palace was in the red. But not until two weeks ago did the government ask Parliament for a raise.

The monarchy costs Britain a minimum of about $6.5 million a year. Even without a monarchy much of this money would have to be spent on such protocol items as the exchange of state visits. Somebody else would have to be chief of state if the Queen wasn't.

PAY IS GOOD

The government annually since 1952, when she became Queen, has provided Elizabeth with £475,000, or about $1.14 million.

The royal yacht Britannia costs $1.2 million a year, and the Queen's flight of airplanes and helicopters needs $1.44 million.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 10, 1971 . . .

The Jesuits closed their mission to Huronia 321 years ago today—in 1650—in the Georgian Bay region of Ontario, which had been established in 1623. All that was left of the mission—60 Frenchmen and about 300 Indians—set out for the trip home to Quebec. They carried with them the bleached bones of two martyrs, Father Jean de Brebeuf and Jerome Lallement, tortured and killed by the Iroquois.

1952—The revolt of the Communist war prisoners on Kojima Island, Korea, ended.

1940—Canada declared war on Italy.

1939—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were guests of honor at the New York World's Fair.

1937—Sir Robert Borden, Canada's prime minister during the First World War, died at 82.

1924—Italian socialist leader Giacomo Matteotti was murdered. His murderers were given light sentences in 1926.

1857—The cities of St. Hyacinthe and Trois-Rivières, Quebec, were incorporated.

1829—The Oxford versus Cambridge boat race was held.

1809—Napoleon was excommunicated.

CHARTER OFFICERS

Charter officers for the newly organized Professional Engineers' Wives Association of Kelowna are, left to right, Mrs. J. D. Ramsell, secretary; Mrs. Vincent Borch, treasurer; and Mrs. R. A. Jemson, president. The objective of the organization, the first auxiliary to be organized in the Interior, is to promote friendship among the wives and widows of the engineering profession and to establish an educational project—such as a bursary for a student in engineering, and to render special assistance wherever requested by the Association of Professional Engineers. The first meeting took the form of an informal luncheon at the home of Mrs. S. S. Gilmore on Pritchard Drive. The first mixed event planned by the auxiliary is a barbecue on July 9, to which all wives and widows of affiliates are invited. Similar organizations have been functioning in Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo with a membership of 600. Interested women may contact Mrs. Jemson at 763-4659 for further information.

HITHER and YON

The 'big event' of the year for senior students at Kelowna Secondary School takes place tonight. Starting with a graduation banquet at the school cafeteria at 5:30 p.m., the evening agenda includes the graduation ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. with alderman W. C. Green as guest speaker.

Following the ceremonies, parents and friends will be entertained with coffee and cookies at the cafeteria patio.

Numerous parties have taken place at different homes in the city in conjunction with the grade 12 graduation of the Kelowna Secondary students. Beas, parties, coke parties and other 'socials' have filled the week with memories for the graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bayle of McTaggart, Sask., are enjoying a visit here with the latter's cousin, Elmer Toovey and Mrs. Toovey of Toovey Road, Rutland.

Members of the Wenatchee Kiwanis Club were special guests during the weekend of the Kelowna Kiwanis Club at a cookout at the Cass Loma home for Mr. and Mrs. Carl Briese. Some of the visitors were taken on fishing jaunts during the afternoon and all enjoyed a sing song which was part of the fellowship at the social.

From Wenatchee were, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ferguson, Earl Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Russell O'Keefe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Church, Jim Wallace, president of the Kelowna club which meets every Monday night at Capri, welcomed the American neighbors to the evening.

EAST KELOWNA

Mr. and Mrs. John Weisbeck of East Kelowna Road have returned home from Edmonton, Alta., where they attended the convocation at the University of Edmonton for their son, Dr. John Weisbeck, Jr., who received his degree in dentistry.

Also attending the ceremony were Dr. Weisbeck's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Ferguson from Prince George.

Dr. and Mrs. Weisbeck with their son and daughter, Jason and Carry will make their home in Kelowna.

McKernan-Huber Vows Exchanged In Nuptial Mass

Rev. Francis Flynn conducted the nuptial mass which united in marriage the Anna Huber of Vancouver and Charles Brian McKernan, also of Vancouver on May 30 in St. Theresa's Roman Catholic Church, Rutland. Purple carnations graced the altar for the mid-afternoon ceremony and Mrs. Maurice Gaudreau presided at the organ.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josef Huber of Kelowna, chose a gown of white organza on satin for her wedding. White daisies trimmed the centre front and a white organza train added back interest. Her nylon net veil which fell to the waist, was held by a headdress consisting of a single white flower set off with pearls. Purple carnations and white daisies formed her bouquet and she wore a pearl necklace borrowed from her mother.

Serving as maid of honor was her sister, Ingrid Huber of Kelowna and bridesmaid was Hilde Huber of Rutland. Flower girl, Robin McKernan of Edmonton was escorted by Joseph Huber, Jr., who served as ring bearer.

IDENTICAL GOWNS

The bridal attendants were gowned in princess styled formal of white and pink sheer lined with mauve. Sheer see-through sleeves and mauve chokers completed their ensembles and they carried purple carnations in a basket like arrangement.

Best man was Paul LeClair and groomsman was Michael McKernan, both of Edmonton.

For the reception at the Rutland Centennial hall, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a pink and white flowered chiffon dress, which also featured sheer sleeves. A pink tinted orchid formed her corsage.

Keeping the purple theme chosen for the occasion the bride's table was decorated with purple carnations and white daisies, with white candelabra flanking a three tiered cake. Edmund Huber, the bride's uncle proposed the toasts. A sleeveless navy coat topped the navy dress with white collar and cuffs chosen by the bride for her going away outfit. White accessories completed her costume.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES MCKERNAN (Rutland Photographers)

Following a honeymoon in Victoria the young couple will reside in Vancouver.

Out of town guests were from Vancouver, Regina, Edmonton, Penticton, Kelowna, Portland and Calgary.

Also taking part in the competitions was Lorrie Boechler.

COURT CURLERS

DUNDEE, Scotland (CP) — A housewife's hair in curlers had the same effect on a magistrate here as did a woman wearing a trouser suit on one of the judges in Gloucester, England, recently. In both cases, the reaction was indignation from the bench. Magistrate Nigel Law spoke in the Dundee case of having a "basic objection" to women sporting curlers in public. "One place I will not tolerate them in is my court," he added.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Crookes are pleased to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Beverly Anne, to Gordon Steven Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Evans of Rutland. The wedding will take place on Oct. 30.

ANN LANDERS

Dark Curly Hair Is Touchy Question

"Dear Ann Landers: Is this for real? I saw an item in our daily paper that said: 'A child will not have hair darker than his father's hair.' His hair will not be curlier than that of the parent with the curlier hair." Check with your experts. This raises some interesting questions.—A Daily Reader

Dear Daily: Here's what Prof. Joshua Lederberg of Stanford University said: "What, never? No, never. Well, hardly ever. Often that doctrine is mischievous. You should ask WHICH hair you are going to compare—and at what age." So there you have it—straight from His Worship at Palo Alto—and quite a quote it is. Not every Nobel Prize-winning geneticist can make his point by borrowing a line from Gilbert and Sullivan!

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago I married this man. Each of us was previously married for 20 years.

My husband is really wonderful—except for one thing. He has not drawn up a new will nor has he changed some of the records which I feel should be changed. He finally altered one insurance policy last month after much prodding. His other policies must remain as they are because of the property settlement.

His ex-wife still carries a military dependent I.D. card which allows her to use the PX, commissary and military hospitals. Under these conditions would she be the recipient of the widow's pension or would I?

I work and help him with his children's college bills and the alimony clobber. I have no idea where I stand if he should die or be killed. He has four children. I have two.

What's the next step for me?

Dear Daily: Talk to an estate lawyer so you can speak to your husband intelligently. Since the military recognizes only one wife at a time it seems to me you are being denied privileges which are rightfully yours. You should insist that this little detail be straightened out at once.

Dear Ann Landers: I just caught up with your answer to "Masquerade," the homosexual who married first a lesbian, then a heterosexual woman. You said, "A woman who marries a homosexual is getting what she wants—which is mostly to be left alone."

You are wrong. Such a woman is a 'vamp' in the old Theda Bara sense. The homosexual male is the ultimate challenge to her prowess as a female. She may appear passive and low-key, but it is only a pose. She is hard at work trying to break down his resistance and prove herself a superwoman.

If "Masquerade" and others like him are sufficiently bisexual, the vamp will succeed. He then becomes the bridegroom of the widow spider. If he is not sufficiently bisexual, he will escape. I know because I—Did It!

Dear Did: Thanks for a firsthand report. I can tell you, however, from other firsthand reports, that there are a variety of reasons why women marry homosexuals — for example: money, social position, companionship, or sheer panic at the thought of being an "unclaimed jewel." And almost every homosexual has encountered the "social-worker" type who tells her, "He's sick, poor fellow, but I can make him well." Last but not least is the closet case who looks like a hot number but is actually terrified of sex and hates it. She is the gal who wants a man—but she wants him to leave her alone.

Dear Ann Landers: A recent writer who signed himself "Oklahama" stated that gasoline, paint thinner and acetone should never be used indoors. He advised the use of kerosene or diesel fuel instead because they are better grease solvents and are non-explosive. This is wrong.

While kerosene and diesel fuel are safer to use because of their higher flash points, both will burn and explode under the right conditions. If kerosene is applied to a hot engine (shadetree mechanics often do this) it will give off inflammable vapors which can be ignited at a lower temperature than gasoline vapors.

I just wanted to correct a misleading statement — Fire Chief in Houston.

Dear Chief: I am always happy to correct a misleading statement—especially if the statement could lead to an 11-alarm fire. (In Texas it could be 13—everything is bigger down there!) Thank you for writing.

editor of the best Kin bulletin in District 5, which is comprised of the whole province. Mrs. Meckling edited an 18-page tabloid size bulletin each month. She did a great deal of the writing herself, as well as editing the copy submitted by others. One of the things that added a bit of color to the regular club bulletin type of news were Terry's original poems of Kin 'doings'.

Romeo-Bowers Wedding In St. Pius X Catholic Church

Glenna Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Romeo of Kelowna, and Andrew L. Bowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bowers of Kamloops exchanged vows at 4 p.m. on June 5th, Rev. Father C. P. Mulvill conducting the service in St. Pius X Roman Catholic Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal jump suit. To complement the outfit she wore a formal white brocade coat on the empire detail. Her elbow length veil with mother of pearl headpiece, and small pearl trim was her something borrowed. Her only jewelry was pearl earrings, a gift from the groom. Her bouquet was yellow roses, white baby mums and stephanotis.

Mrs. Ken Boychuk of Williams Lake served as bride's matron. Her lime green and yellow patto outfit was complemented by the lime green flowers in her hair, and she carried a single giant yellow mum.

Ken Boychuk of Williams Lake served as best man, and ushers were Doug Hagan of Kamloops, a friend of the groom, and Brian Romeo of Revelstoke, brother of the bride.

AT HOME

For the 'At Home' reception,

Mrs. Romeo received the guests in a pale mauve dress and sleeveless coat ensemble, with white accessories.

The groom's mother assisted her and chose an orange coat dress ensemble, with beige accessories. Their corsages were alike—white rose buds with the lime green trim.

The three tiered wedding cake, which was made by the bride's mother, centered the head table, and the white lace cloth and lime green candles in crystal holders which flanked the cake tied in with the bride's colors.

Clem Penon of Victoria, great uncle of the bride proposed the toast, to which the groom ably responded, and Donna Bowers, sister of the groom, was in charge of the guest book.

The bride chose a red and white polka dot dress with white accessories, and corsage for her going away outfit. The couple will reside in Kelowna.

Out of town guests: Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bowers, Bonnie Hagan, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Hagan, John Haggarty, Mrs. Marilyn Cardinal of Kamloops; Mr. and Mrs. Tangers Gallicano, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Davidson; Mr. and Mrs. Jim English; Mr. and Mrs. Alan Langworth, Mr.

SWINGING PARTNERS

By K. M.

The Kelowna Wagon Wheelers held their party Saturday evening in the Winfield Community Hall with about 20 squares of dancers, dancing to the calling of Vic Graves. Dancers attended from the various Valley clubs and from Kamloops, Salmon Arm, Enderby, Princeton and Trail.

The Peach City Promenaders held their party in the Legion Hall, Penticton, with Chuck Jordan as caller.

June 12, we have the Westsyde Squares hosting a party in the Westbank Community Hall with Bill Dyck of Vernon as caller.

June 19, Centennial dance of the month held in the Penticton Peach Bowl with Cal Golden, Hot Springs, Ark., the caller with the golden voice. Grand March is at 8:30 p.m.

Nelson's annual square dance, July 9, 10, 11, 1971, L. V. Rogers High School, Nelson, B.C. Three big days of fun and dancing featuring Earle Park, Yorkton, Sask.

June 26, Freshmen's Frolic in the Winfield Community Hall.

A new club has been formed at the graduation party Friday evening at Alex and Sheila McClelland's known as the Kelowna Kloverleaf. This is a group of dancers ages ranging from 8 to 16 years.

MISTER CALLER... How smooth a dancer are you?

It's been said that some of the finest swimming coaches or golfing pros are not themselves outstanding participants in their field. They simply have the knack of instructing others. In square dancing the caller-teacher should be accomplished to the point where he can set a good example for his students. Before ever picking up the microphone to call or teach, the prospective caller should analyze his own dancing. If he hopes to turn out good dancers who will stay with the activity and be a credit to him, he should allow sufficient time prior to teaching a class to develop his own proper styling habits. In square dancing the teacher must set a good example in everything. True leadership is like an iceberg, only one-eighth of it shows. A person seeking recognition rather than results seldom is a true leader. Unob-trusive, behind the scenes leadership seldom gets much notice or formal credit but it does get results.

A real leader is usually an outstanding diplomat and every club needs more people like him.

Till next week, happy square dancing.

Medical Association Recommends Changes In Criminal Code

HALIFAX (CP) — The general council of the Canadian Medical Association voted overwhelmingly here in favor of removal from the Criminal Code of any requirement that therapeutic abortion must be approved by a hospital abortion committee.

In effect the action, if carried out by Parliament, would leave it up to the patient, her doctor and the normal hospital rules and bylaws to govern termination of a pregnancy.

Removal of the Criminal Code requirement was moved by Dr. Bette Stephenson of Toronto, past president of the Ontario Medical Association as the gen-

Abortion Law Remains Pat

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hasn't made any policy decision to change existing abortion law, it was learned today.

A spokesman for Justice Minister John Turner also said that no amendments to the law are on the drafting boards.

He was commenting on reports from the Canadian Medical Association convention in Halifax that revisions may be introduced in Parliament by the end of the year.

The medical association earlier this week voted for changes in the two-year-old law on therapeutic abortion.

Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday cast some doubt on whether a one-day Commons debate, forecast for the current session, will be held.

He said it doesn't have priority and certainly won't take place before the summer recess expected this month. It might be held before the session ends next fall.

Senior Citizens' Association To Ask For Increase To $150

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — The Senior Citizens' Association of British Columbia plans to ask the federal government to increase to $150 a month the old age pension available without a means test. Maximum now is $135.

At the association's 18th annual conference Tuesday, the 80 delegates also decided to request that the age at which women can receive the pension be lowered to 60 from 65.

Delegates agreed to press for an increase in the amount of income tax exemption for the elderly to $3,000 for a single person and $4,000 for a couple.

A resolution calling for free ambulance service under the B.C. medical plan was passed and delegates agreed to inquire about the disposition of the $3 increase in per capita grants to municipalities.

Marguerite Smith of Vancouver, president of the association, said the grant was designed for tourism, industrial development and ambulance service, but the latter was often neglected.

Isabel Dawson, B.C. minister without portfolio, told the conference of a mobile hearing assessment service to be instituted in the province "as soon as possible" to test hearing and provide information about hearing aids to those in rural communities.

She also said the B.C. Hearing Aid Regulation Act would come into effect July 1.

On the subject of recreation, Mrs. Dawson said that within the next year she will look into the establishment of holiday centres.

Peace Is Over-Riding Meetings In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Peace appeared to be the over-riding theme today as the annual meeting of the National Hockey League moved into its final day.

Today's final sessions featured a pair of early drafts—the all-important amateur and the home second phase of the reverse.

In the amateur exercise, the 14 NHL teams had access to the top junior hockey players in Canada and the United States, while the reverse draft saw the American and Western Hockey League teams finish drafting on the NHL teams—a procedure they started Wednesday.

A pair of potentially volatile issues were settled amicably Wednesday when the owners' player's council reached mutual agreement on several points under dispute; and appeals by two clubs against fines imposed.

Beliveau Ends Hockey Career

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Beliveau, an 18-year veteran of National Hockey League play, announced his retirement Wednesday at an emotion-packed news conference.

"It was a difficult decision to reach," Beliveau told the gathering. "Hockey has been my life since the day my father gave me a pair of skates when I was five years old."

"It was a hard decision because I still love the action on the ice. I had hundreds of letters urging me to stay on for one more year as a player and have been urged to do so by my team-mates. But I have to get closer to my family."

Beliveau said he reached the decision to retire 10 days ago while travelling on a plane from Calgary. He said he did not want to think about retirement throughout the playoffs, but had hoped for a smooth route to his final Stanley Cup.

Beliveau, who will be 40 on Aug. 31, will assume duties as vice-president of corporate relations immediately with the Montreal hockey club.

SCORED 507 GOALS
Beliveau is one of four men to score 500 goals in NHL competition. He played a total of 1,215 regular-season games, scoring 507 goals and 712 assists for 1,219 points.

He appeared in 70 games last season, scoring 25 goals—including his 500th career goal—and adding 51 assists.

He was instrumental in leading the Canadiens to a Stanley Cup triumph this spring over Chicago Black Hawks. It was the 10th time Beliveau was a member of a Stanley Cup winning team.

Beliveau said after the Canadiens beat Chicago that there was "a 50-50 chance" he would call it quits.

During this year's playoffs, the native of Trois-Rivieres, Que., fired six goals and counted 16 assists, breaking the playoff assist record of 15 set by Stan Mikita of Chicago.

JEAN BELIVEAU

He has been selected to the NHL's first all-star team six times and made the second team three times.

He won the Hart Trophy, as the league's most valuable player twice and won the Art Ross Trophy as league scoring champion in 1965.

Beliveau was the first winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy when he was selected the most valuable player in the 1965 playoffs.

He is only one of three players to have scored two Stanley Cup winning goals since 1927. The others are Toe Blake, his former coach—and team-mate Henri Richard.

Carr Off To The Blues Lafleur Goes To Habs

Former Kelowna Buckaroo of the B.C. Junior Hockey League, Gene Carr is now the property of the St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League, being picked up in today's draft of amateurs in Montreal.

The six foot, 185 pound forward scored 36 goals and 68 assists with the Western Canada Hockey League's Flin Flon Bombers last season, and was the fourth amateur to be drafted.

Carr, a native of Nanaimo, came to the Buckaroos in 1967, playing two full seasons with the BCJHL team before moving to the Bombers after the 1969 season.

Carr, Lafleur, the explosive right winger from Quebec Junior A Hockey League, had the honor to be the first player picked.

Lafleur, who scored 130 goals in 62 regular season games last year, was grabbed by the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens. The Canadiens held the first-round pick of California Golden Seals because of a prior deal.

Marcel Dionne, the small but high-flying centre from the Ontario Hockey Association's St. Catharines Black Hawks, was the next to go. He was drafted by Detroit Red Wings.

Dionne scored 62 goals and had 81 assists in 46 games last season and was OHA scoring leader as was Lafleur in the AJAHL.

Vancouver Canucks were next on the griddle and after a time out grabbed defenceman Jacek Guevremont from Montreal Canadiens of the OHA.

BLUES PICK GENE CARR
St. Louis Blues, who had Pittsburgh Penguins' first-round choice, latched onto Carr for the $3,000 NHL draft price.

The NHL clubs pay an additional $3,000 to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when the amateurs turn professional and another $4,000 if the player picked plays 25 or more games in his first pro season in the NHL.

Richard Martin, the left winger who set a record of 71 goals in the OHA with Montreal

Canadiens last season, was the next to go. He went to Buffalo Sabres where he joined former team-mate Gilbert Perreault, first-round pick last year and NHL rookie of the year.

Boston Bruins took Los Angeles Kings' first-round pick and drafted defenceman Ron Jones from Edmonton Oilers.

Montreal Canadiens allowed the Bruins to grab forward Chuck Arnason from Flin Flon, using a first-round pick acquired from Minnesota North Stars in a previous deal.

Philadelphia Flyers had the next two choices. They exercised one held by Toronto Maple Leafs as well as their own.

The Flyers picked a pair of forwards—Larry Wright from W.C.J.H.L.'s Regina Pats and Pierre Plante from Drummondville Rangers of the QJAHL.

New York Rangers took the St. Louis turn and chose right winger Steve Vickers from Toronto Mariboros of the OHA. The Canadiens then went to Ottawa 67s of the OHA to grab left winger Murray Wilson.

Centre Dan Spring of Edmonton was next to go, drafted by Chicago Black Hawks. The Rangers, exercising their own pick, returned to the Mariboros for defenceman Steve Durbano, the most penalized player in the OHA last season with 324 minutes.

Boston Bruins wound up the first-round action by taking forward Terry O'Reilly from Oshawa Generals of the OHA.

Al Through With Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — Scotty Bowman, a 38-year-old Montrealer who managed and coached St. Louis Blues in the National Hockey League last season, replaced Al MacNeil today as coach of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens.

It was announced earlier in Halifax that MacNeil had accepted the job of general manager and coach of the Montreal-owned Voyageurs of the American Hockey League.

The Voyageurs are moving to Halifax on a full-time basis for the 1971-72 season and will be known as the Nova Scotia Voyageurs.

Announcement of MacNeil's removal from the coaching job with the Canadiens follows speculation that the Sydney, N.S. native was on his way out after less than one season as coach of the NHL team. During the playoffs, MacNeil's coaching tactics were openly criticized by veteran Montreal centre Henri Richard.

Mike Kelly, vice-president of the Voyageurs, said today MacNeil was appointed to the Voyageurs Wednesday.

Kelly also confirmed that the Voyageurs will move to Halifax on a full-time basis for the 1971-72 American League season, playing all 42 home games here. The team will be renamed Nova Scotia Voyageurs. Last year the Voyageurs played a few of their home games in Halifax as an experiment.

Sehn Still The Power In Senior B Softball

Ed Sehn continues to be a headache to Kelowna and District Senior B Softball League pitchers and has shown no signs of slowing up his pace.

The big rangy shortstop with the league-leading Budget Boys collected three hits including a solo home run against the Willows Inn Willows Tuesday and brought his batting average to a lofty .391.

The hard-hitting veteran has collected 18 hits on 46 trips to the plate thus far this season, batting in 16 runs, crossing the plate 14 times, and smashing out three home runs, all league highs.

A pair of Rutland Rovers follow Sehn in the standings, with Tim Rieger sporting a .366 average and teammate Don Kroschinsky working with a .361 mark.

Rieger has 15 hits on 41 trips to the plate, while first baseman Kroschinsky is 13 for 36.

While Sehn has been the power at the plate for the Budget Boys, who have a two-game cushion on second-place Rovers, Gib Loseth has been a tower of strength on the mound.

Loseth, with a 10-1 record in the Boys' 14 games thus far, has 98 strikeouts to his record, by far the best mark among league hurlers. Arnie Rath of Rutland is second with 31.

There has been little doubt the Budget Boys have been relying on their bat strength however, as they top the team batting averages, with a .282 mark, 33 percentage points ahead of the Rovers who sit with a .249 average.

The Rovers are still relying on defensive tactics, and have committed only 15 errors as a team, while the rest of the league still is having troubles on the field.

The Budget Boys, despite their first-place standing, have committed 28 errors, the same as the third-place Willows. The last-place Labs have booted 26.

Tonight all teams are in action, with the Willows and Rovers meeting at Rutland Centennial Park at 8:30 p.m., and the Labs and Budget Boys taking on each other in King's Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

A Big Inning For Treadgolds

A six-run outburst in the sixth inning carried Treadgolds to a 9-3 victory over Lions in a Babe Ruth League game Thursday at Elks Stadium.

Treadgolds led just 3-1 as they entered the sixth, but the six-run explosion helped winning pitcher Rob Koenig to an easy victory.

In a second game at Babe Ruth Park, Ted Eilan pitched a four-hitter and struck out nine as Kinsmen edged Peoples 8-6.

People's Kevin Harding belted a two-run homer in the final inning but it wasn't quite enough to overcome Kinsmen's lead.

Ken Yochim, Brian Brooks, Garry Kielbiski and Brad Owens each collected a pair of hits to back up the three-hit pitching of Dean Lang, who won his second game.

IN THE MAJORS

Giants In 'June Swoon'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Fun in '71" is manager Charlie Fox's slogan for San Francisco Giants, but he's having trouble dispelling the "June swoon" label.

The Giants managed only one hit—Dick Dietz's second-inning bouncing single up the middle—off Montreal Expos' Steve Renko Wednesday night and went down to a 4-0 defeat, their seventh in eight games this month.

In little more than a week, their lead over Los Angeles

Dodgers in the National League West has been trimmed from 10½ to seven games.

Asked if the Giants were psyched by the "June swoon" tag, Fox snapped: "I'm no (censored) psychologist. Did you guys ever consider that your man just threw a one-hitter out there? Don't you guys want to give him any credit? That's all I'm going to tell you."

The players weren't talking, either. They showered hurriedly and raced for the team bus.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies trounced Los Angeles 9-4. New York Mets rallied to beat San Diego Padres 4-2. Atlanta Braves whipped St. Louis Cardinals 8-3. Chicago Cubs shaded Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 and Cincinnati Reds edged Houston Astros 2-1.

Gene Mauch, the Montreal manager, couldn't analyze Fox's problems either. "I have no idea what's wrong with the Giants," he said.

Just Looking For The Ball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chuck Harrison's biceps have bulges, his bat has bounce ... and his opponents have bruises.

Harrison, who destroyed two minor league teams single-handedly Sunday and Monday before his recall to the American League, came through with another knockout punch as Kansas City Royals beat faltering Washington Senators 5-4 Wednesday night.

"I was just looking for the ball," said the 5-foot-10, 212-pounder who found it and slugged it for a bases-loaded single to score two runs with two out in the ninth inning.

The first baseman tuned up earlier with a two-game demolition job with Omaha in the American Association. He tore into minor league pitching for five home runs and 15 runs batted in to pace a 17-15 triumph over Denver Sunday and an 8-4 success over Wichita Monday night.

The victory was the Royal's eighth in nine games while the Senators dropped their sixth straight and 27th in 34.

Cleveland Indians topped Chicago White Sox 3-1, Baltimore Orioles nipped Minnesota Twins 2-1 in 10 innings, Detroit Tigers trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 3-0, Oakland Athletics smacked Boston Red Sox 6-1 and California Angels spoiled New York Yankees 4-3 in the other league games.

HAS BEEN AROUND Harrison, a baseball vagabond who played several years with the Houston Astro's organization before moving to Kansas City, didn't figure in their plans this year and, in fact, wasn't even invited to spring training.

A Young Child's Learning Stage

by URSULA SURTEES

Sometimes, there are days in everyone's life, when things seem dull and humdrum. At times like these, I would recommend a little eavesdropping on the conversation of small children, especially in the five to eight age bracket.

At this time in their lives many things are "firsts" for them, and seeing things through their eyes, and watching the reaction can be a real experience. The interpretations of these items are at times quite astonishing and range from the wildest theories to uncannily accurate. True or false is one facet of this game, and the youngsters can usually sort these out quite quickly. It is only the work of a minute to decide that although the eyes of the Kodiak Bear are glass, the teeth and claws are very real, speculation on how much he weighs and how high he stands is usually settled by the oldest child in the group, with his superior grade three reading accomplishments. Carefully reading out the printing, the young instructor reveals these facts and figures.

Many items are self explanatory. A small child may not know what a Chinese abacus is, but he knows instantly that it is a counting device, he can see that a stone pestle or hammer is exactly right for pounding, and often a child looking at one will unconsciously pantomime the way in which it is used. Small boys are as interested as small girls in color and texture. They like the smooth immaculate look of the waxing birds, and the warm cosy feeling of raw sheepskin in their hands. The beautiful black and mauve and gold Spanish shawl is an item that boys find absolutely irresistible. Few can resist the impulse to stroke the shining material or let the long silk fringe trickle through their fingers.

Hat pins are usually something that stumps them. Nowadays when hats are the exception rather than the rule, a youngster cannot realize its importance in yesterday's wardrobe, so hatpins, to their eyes, are nothing to do with dress. I have heard them described as everything from weapons (which indeed they could be) to paper fasteners. Little girls look with incredulous eyes at the cotton lace-trimmed panties of grandma's time. These of course reach to the knees and some times lower. They look at each other and giggle, and obviously don't envy grandma one bit.

Grandmother's beauty aids are another un-envied field. The curling tongs and wavers are regarded as some kind or torture device, butdon hooks also are food for much thought. Most children have a real appreciation of fine needlework, especially in the laces. Many small noses have been pressed against the glass for a closer look at an item which has a "hand-made" label on it.

Final Services For CDC Move Through Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The long-awaited, much-belayed legislation to create the Canada Development Corp. moved through the final rites of passage in the Commons Wednesday.

After a brief but abusive debate on third reading, the bill was approved by a vote of 56 to 56 and now will go on for what is likely to be critical scrutiny by the Senate.

In all likelihood, the rough initiation will have been only a foretaste of life to come for the CDC.

Conceived as a Liberal party election pledge in 1963, the idea spent most of its prolonged gestation as an annual line in speeches from the throne.

Since the introduction of the CDC legislation earlier this year, it has been a subject of strident attacks both from spokesmen for the business community and those seeking greater public participation in the Canadian economy.

STILL NEEDS PEOPLE
Meanwhile, Finance Minister Edgar Benson has yet to turn up qualified people willing to manage the corporation.

GEORGE HEES
... laugh-or cry

A principal concern in the general debate on the issue has been that the CDC will be caught between the need to return a profit to investors and the goal of serving the public interest.

In the final debate in the Commons, George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) maintained that mere mention of the CDC in investment circles brings laughter from those who do not cry.

The corporation would be "the greatest flop since the Edsel," he said. People simply would not transfer money from savings accounts, bonds and insurance policies to the CDC, short of a government guarantee on returns.

NDP financial spokesman Max Saltzman charged the government with political cowardice and dishonesty for creating an emasculated CDC.

He suggested the original proposal has become merely a safe alternative to a government policy that would require foreign-owned branch plants to put their shares on the market for Canadians to buy.

SUGGESTS REVIEW
Faint praise came from Steve Otto (L—York East), who suggested the government review its concept of the CDC and make it an organization to guarantee private investment rather than have the CDC make large investments.

The final speaker, Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) angrily protested the provision that will give the CDC four Crown corporations for its portfolio. He claimed the corporation will do nothing for a situation in which "Canadians are squatters in their own land."

In the vote, the Liberals were joined by Independent Roch LaSalle (Joliette) against the three opposition parties.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 151, Conservative 72, NDP 24, Social Credit 13, Independent 1, Independent 2, vacant 1.

The Commons is scheduled today to consider amendments to the Prairie Farm Advance Payments Act and may then go on to legislation to revise the Unemployment Insurance Act.

MAY END CONTROVERSY
Passage of the CDC legislation should at least dispose of the controversy surrounding government ownership of such successful business enterprises as Polymer Corp. Ltd., set up during the Second World War.

Polymer, the government share of Panarctic Oils Ltd., Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. and Northern Transportation Ltd. will be the first holdings of the CDC.

The government plan is to start the corporation with $250 million of public money and then reduce its participation to about 10 per cent while allowing citizens to purchase stock at about $5 a share.

The CDC is envisaged by the government as having authorized capital of $2 billion, half in preferred shares and half in common shares.

TOPELESS SWIM SNARLS TRAFFIC

WEST MIFFLIN, Pa. (AP) — Police worked for nearly an hour to unsnarl a traffic jam near here and finally had to threaten to arrest three high school girls who had gone for a topeless swim in a river near busy Pennsylvania 837.

"I hope every traffic tieup I'm in is like this one," a motorist told police.

Mall Test Succeeds In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Two merchandising giants have opposing views, but most merchants agree the Yonge Street mall was a success worth repeating.

The mall—a four-block stretch of Toronto's main shopping street closed to traffic all last week—has drawn almost unanimous praise from the business community, just as it drew praise from the people strolling through its potted trees and portable flower beds.

For Bob Dawson, manager of a Dack's Shoes store on the mall, it meant a 15-per-cent increase in business. But he remembers something else, too.

"See this space?" he asks, pointing to a display area just inside the door. "With all the traffic on Yonge Street, I usually have to dust it every day. Last week I dusted it just once. But now the cars are back, I'm dusting every day again."

He would like to see the mall become a permanent summer fixture, and so would Bruce Elder, acting store manager at Eaton's one of the Yonge Street giants. For his firm, the mall meant a 10-per-cent increase in business, with the largest part of that increase in women's ready-to-wear items.

He would like to see the idea extended through the summer and into early autumn. "Even after the novelty wears off, it would still make the downtown core a more exciting place. A live core is vital to any city."

CALLED DISAPPOINTMENT
Across at Simpsons, the other giant, store manager W. E. Bell called the mall "a major disappointment."

Although he declined to give figures, he said sales were down from the comparable week last year, despite having the store open until 9 p.m. five nights instead of the usual two. He couldn't pin the decline on any one thing, but said the "business girls who are usually in the store at noon were out strolling on the mall instead."

Mr. Bell said he was "not against malls; I'm sure the people enjoyed it." But he wants the idea tried in another downtown location next year.

Commonwealth Trust Deficit A 'Million' Witness Reports

VANCOUVER (CP) — Exhibits entered Wednesday in the trial of former Commonwealth Trust Co. president A. G. Duncan Crux showed the parent Commonwealth Investors Syndicate had a $1 million deficit when it was ordered into receivership in 1968.

A document read in British Columbia Supreme Court by prosecutor R. D. Plommer stated that a balance sheet of CIS prepared by an accounting firm covering the year 1967 was presented to the company three days before government-appointed receiver-manager A. D. Stanley took over.

Mr. Plommer suggested to Mr. Crux on the witness stand that this information ran counter to his claim earlier in the trial that CIS was a picture of health before Mr. Stanley came in.

Mr. Crux replied that he knew

CIS had a deficit but said that in the circumstances there was nothing seriously wrong because the company had "ample assets."

He told Mr. Justice A. B. Macfarlane and a 12-man jury that the deficit situation developed largely at a time when he had already withdrawn from active leadership in the company.

He testified that he had announced to his staff in 1966 that he planned to retire in 1968 and said he had started to pull out by 1967. He felt compelled to get back into harness about the same time because he saw that certain parts of the Commonwealth organization were beginning to lose money.

Mr. Crux is charged with theft and false pretences involving $715,462 in securities held for three Kelowna investment companies.

The trial continues.

Queen's Private Fortune Set At About $4.8 Million

LONDON (Reuter) — A director of the firm of bankers which has handled the private funds of Britain's monarchs for the last 200 years estimated today that Queen Elizabeth's private wealth is unlikely to exceed £2 million ($4.8 million).

John Colville of Coutts Bank said he has had no access to the royal accounts but based his estimate on historical evidence from the time of George III—the bank's first royal client.

His statement on the Queen's wealth follows recent public criticism from one of her privy council advisers, Richard Crossman, that the monarch's request to Parliament for more pay is not justified.

Crossman, a former cabinet minister in the Labor government and now editor of the liberal New Statesman magazine said one had to admire the Queen's truly royal cheek when she inherited private assets conservatively estimated at more than $120 million.

Coville said in an interview today that the Queen cannot possibly have $120 million.

He said that by careful investment and allowance for inflation she might have inherited £1 million which, with equally careful investment, could by now have, at most, been doubled.

"It is true of course that the Queen has assets such as works of art of enormous value. But these belong to Britain and to sell them would be unthinkable," he said.

Queen Elizabeth has an income from the state of $1.14 million dollars a year which was fixed in 1952 when she came to the throne. Last month she asked Parliament to review this sum because of inflation and rising costs.

Orphaned Fawn 'Doing Well'

TOWER, Minn. (AP) — A fawn, taken from the body of a doe hit by a car in northern Minnesota, is thriving under the care of a state forest ranger. Howard Wagner said he was called several days ago to the accident scene and found the doe with her legs broken and other injuries. Wagner shot the doe and removed the fawn from her body.

Employees At B.C. Supermarkets Asked To Approve New Contracts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some 5,900 employees of 200 supermarkets in British Columbia are negotiating during the past few weeks.

About 3,000 members of the Retail Clerks Union at Safeway, Super Valu, High-Low, Shop Easy, Food Fair, IGA and Overwaitea are to vote on a two-year agreement giving them a 20-per-cent wage increase.

Today 900 employees of Kelly Douglas and Co. Ltd., which supplies Super Valu stores, are to vote on a contract proposal giving them 16 per cent over two years.

Three other sets of negotiations in the food industry are continuing.

The Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union is still negotiating with Macdonalds Consolidated Ltd. About 600 employees are involved.

Mediator Clive McKee's term in this dispute expires June 19. Strike and lockout notices have been issued but a legal strike is impossible until the mediator files his report.

The Amalgamated Meat Cutters, representing 800 butchers employed by Safeway, Super Valu, IGA, Overwaitea, Shop Easy, Food Fair and High-Low, is still negotiating while taking its strike vote.

Talks between Bakery and Confectionary Workers in the lower mainland area and the same seven food stores have temporarily been called off. Mediator Ed Sims stepped out of the dispute last week. About 600 workers are involved.

DRIVER JAILED
DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Bernard James Leslie, 24, of Franklin River on Vancouver Island was sentenced to three months in jail Wednesday for theft of gasoline last Saturday. He also received one month for driving while his licence was suspended.

MAYOR EXHAUSTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell was taken home by ambulance Wednesday evening after he suffered a fainting spell of a few seconds while driving his family car home from dinner at a restaurant. His wife said he was in good condition, but was exhausted after putting in long hours at his office.

ADOPTION IS TOPIC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Subsidized adoptions will be discussed at the annual meeting of the B.C. Association of Social Workers June 19 at the University of B.C. A resolution from an association committee asks the provincial government to subsidize families who wish to adopt a child but who are financially unable to do so.

TRIAL DECISION DELAYED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Court Judge Lawrence Brahan will decide June 23 whether to commit former mayoral candidate Andrew Thompson Campbell for trial on charges of trafficking in LSD in May, 1969. He was arrested Dec. 9 last year, just after he came third in the election which saw Mayor Tom Campbell win a third term.

his style:

Those were the golden days of auto racing. Sheet metal and sheer guts; the full-throttle roar of cars and crowds; and the taste of Old Style Beer to quench that wind-whipped, dust-dry, bone-fired thirst. The cars move a lot faster today, but Old Style's still brewed slow and easy. For good old-fashioned flavour. So rally round the Old Style flag. It's a winner!

FAMILY TOGETHERNESS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Mrs. Billy Tresner was admitted to hospital here to give birth to her 10th child, a daughter. Two days later her daughter, Mrs. Pamela Morgan, was admitted to the same hospital for the birth of her first child, a son. The two women were room-mates at the hospital.

ANCIENT AND MODERN

Long-Term Solution 'Vital' For Combating Inflation

HALIFAX (CP) — Western societies urgently need to adopt effective business combines policies as one of the long-term solutions to inflationary pressures, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday.

He told the annual meeting of the Consumers Association of Canada that competition policy, more commonly known as combines or anti-trust policy, should mean consumers get necessary goods and services at the most competitive possible prices. The efficient allocation of resources also helped provide jobs and economic growth.

Although the influence of combines policy on inflation was indirect and less immediate than fiscal and monetary policies, it could help moderate inflation in several ways. One was to lower barriers preventing entry of new firms, and free to give full emphasis to questions of economics as well as to questions of law which must of necessity be a primary concern of the courts which now determine these problems," he said.

deal as effectively as legislation allows with the abuses and provide a market structure that assures... the very real benefits of truly competitive conditions."

Mr. Basford's department has been revising the Combines Investigation Act, which might be considered a cornerstone of the government's competition policy.

ACT LACKS SCOPE

The minister said his quarrel is not with the act's purpose but with its lack of scope and flexibility of application.

A more flexible and technical means of evaluating economic issues was needed, including devices to give businessmen advance indications of what practices were, or were not, acceptable.

"This suggests to me creation of a new tribunal, expertly staffed, and free to give full emphasis to questions of economics as well as to questions of law which must of necessity be a primary concern of the courts which now determine these problems," he said.

The tribunal, with its members experienced in economics, law, business conduct and public affairs, would be invaluable for ironing out merger problems and could be given the right to restrain monopolies from expanding.

It could eliminate the abuse of patents or trademarks and draw up "guidelines in a number of areas that would tell the public and the business executive what the rules were."

COULD INCLUDE SERVICE

Mr. Basford also suggested that service industries may be included in the revised combines legislation.

He said the present act does not reflect "the reality that the fastest-growing part of the economy today is in the area of service industries." Competition policy could not be complete and effective without including them.

Conference delegates approved a spate of resolutions at their general sessions, including one asking the federal consumer affairs department to regulate lawn darts.

Dr. John Anderson, a Halifax pediatrician, told the group that some children have been seriously hurt when hit by the metal-tipped darts designed for outdoor use. He suggested they carry warning labels.

The association decided to ask television broadcasting authorities to regulate advertising aimed at children, and wants the government to develop mandatory standards for devices to hold young children riding in motor vehicles.

It intends to press for legislation permitting consumers with similar complaints against a business to proceed together with a court action. It contends this would provide for public enforcement of consumer protection laws.

Despite some opposition, the meeting approved in principle a policy advocating unit pricing of food and other packaged products by large, multi-store retailers. They see the pricing of a product per unit of measurement as facilitating price comparison.

Senior Manitoba Executive Resigns Over Hydro Policy

WINNIPEG (CP) — A senior executive of Manitoba Hydro resigned Wednesday, apparently because he could not accept the hydro board plan to proceed with a multi-million dollar power project on the Nelson River in northern Manitoba.

Kris Kristjansson, assistant general manager and a member of Hydro staff for the last 10 years, tendered his resignation three weeks ago. It was accepted Wednesday.

The announcement came two days after Mr. Kristjansson had clashed with Hydro's chairman, David Cass-Beggs, during a legislative committee meeting called to discuss different plans for the $77.5 million power project.

During the meeting, Mr. Cass-Beggs had attacked proposals put forward by former Manitoba premier D. L. Campbell, and called the former premier's objections to hydro's plans a "schoolboy arithmetic, founded on inaccurate assumptions."

CAMPBELL DISAGREED

Mr. Campbell, Liberal premier from 1948 to 1959, had disagreed with hydro's plans to regulate Lake Winnipeg for power and flood-control purposes, claiming $11 million a year could be saved by diverting water from the Churchill River.

Mr. Campbell had himself resigned a month earlier from the hydro board over disagreement with its policies.

Hydro plans call for a $50 million program to regulate Lake Winnipeg for both power and flood-control purposes, to be followed in 1975 or 1976 by a $27.5 million diversion of the Churchill River to the Nelson River at southern Indian Lake.

Premier Schreyer told the legislature Wednesday the contract on the first stage of the plan has been let by Manitoba Hydro. The successful bid of $12.8 million, to dredge two channels at the north end of the lake, was awarded to a Vancouver consortium, Sceptre Dredging Ltd. and Dillingham Corp. of Canada.

DAM BUILDER LEAVES VANCOUVER (CP) —

The man in charge of building the Peace and Columbia River dams for B.C. Hydro leaves this week to supervise construction of the huge Tarbella irrigation and power project in West Pakistan. J. P. (Pete) Ottesen, 61, of West Vancouver was responsible for the Bennett and Mica dams for seven years.

High Wage Settlement Followed By Aluminum Hike Upsets Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — A high wage settlement in the United States aluminum industry and subsequent price hikes for aluminum has evoked presidential disapproval.

The United Steelworkers of America announced agreement on new labor contracts with four major aluminum companies that give 32,000 workers pay rises of more than 30 per cent over a three-year period.

At the same time the Aluminum Co. of America said it would raise the price of almost all fabricated products by an average of six per cent starting Sept. 1. Other major aluminum companies indicated they would match these increases.

The White House said the president was disappointed by the increases. Ronald Ziegler, the White House press secretary, said: "It is felt that they are part of a pattern that must be broken to regain reasonable wage and price stability."

The White House indicated it will not attempt to force a decrease in aluminum prices but expressed concern that the steel and copper industries will adopt the settlement as their goal in forthcoming labor negotiations in those industries.

essentially the same as those won in the can industry, which President Nixon criticized as inflationary. The aluminum settlement also goes beyond the can industry contracts in fringe benefit areas such as pensions, vacations and premium pay.

Trustees of the Penn Central Railroad, which is in bankruptcy reorganization, said this week they are selling all of the railway's vast properties along Park Avenue in New York City, some of the most valuable real estate in the U.S. The entire package is estimated to have a value of $1.2 billion, with the land alone valued at about $450 million.

The decision to sell the property was a surprise and a switch from the trustees' earlier position. Previously they said the $21.3 million in annual income from the property was essential to help defray the railway's operating cost.

Factory orders fell in April and businesses have pared their 1971 capital spending plans, the commerce department reported during the week.

New factory orders fell 1.9 per cent in April from a month before, the department said, marking the first decline since last October when they dropped 2.4 per cent.

WON'T LOWER AI

Steelworkers' union officials have maintained they would not accept contracts in copper and steel that are not as good as those in the aluminum and can industries.

The basic wage increases in the aluminum contracts are essentially the same as those won in the can industry, which President Nixon criticized as inflationary. The aluminum settlement also goes beyond the can industry contracts in fringe benefit areas such as pensions, vacations and premium pay.

Astrospects—Except for some early morning exhilaration, not much can be expected of this day. In fact, all will encounter some minor hurdles as the hours pass—some seemingly to appear one right after the other, with resultant consternation. None of these should be of momentous importance, however. Not a small part of the problem will revolve about inattentive persons or those who just can't make up their minds. Counter with patience, and evening should find all situations solved.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Soldiers Return With Malaria

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son had malaria twice in the service. Now that he is coming home I would like to know what effects it may have on his general health. Can it recur? What precautions must be taken? I hear so many stories, and have been told to try to persuade him not to marry as he will never be healthy.—E.M.

What dummy peddled you that story about telling him not to marry? Forget it.

But don't forget the malaria. It can flare up periodically, with episodes of chills, fever, aching muscles, headaches.

Your son may be one of the bright young fellows who pays attention to what he is told; then again he might be so intent on getting back to civilian life that he forgets the instructions given to him in the service, or on his way back.

Anyway, if your son has any recurrence of his malaria, a blood smear will identify the type of malaria—there are varying forms of it, and it is necessary to know which kind it is.

Treatment is not a do-it-yourself affair. While quinine used to be the classic treatment for malaria, we can do considerably better now, using different drugs, singly or in combination, to suit the variety of malaria involved. With adequate treatment, there is no reason to fear any damaging after-effects.

By adequate treatment, I mean, usually, a course of treatment spread over about two weeks. When troops were returning from Korea, the trip was long enough to have them take a supervised course of treatment of 14 days. (Treatment in the field often could not be sufficient.)

But with troops coming home by air, treatment can't be supervised for that long. Men needing anti-malarial drugs are given an eight-day supply, but there's no guarantee that they will take them. You know how young people sometimes are.

On the other hand, you may find that your son, having had two attacks, will have the good sense to take the prescribed treatment, and also know what to do if he has a flare-up.

But if he has an attack of chills and fever, see your doctor promptly and tell him your son had malaria overseas.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I dislocated my shoulder several months ago and it is still an effort for me to raise my arm as high as my face.

My doctor said it did not stay in the socket properly on account of a stretched or torn ligament and the only cure would be surgery. How successful is this?—L.S.

Quite reliably successful. This type of surgery is done frequently on athletes, particularly football players, and they go back into action, so you can judge from that.

If the surgery is not done, you are subject to recurring dislocation, which you already know is both annoying and painful. The shoulder can slip out of place with the simplest of arm movements, once the original injury has occurred.

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

Card reading is not an exact science, though there are times when declarer can in fact be absolutely certain of the disposition of the unseen cards. But more often than not declarer must feel his way, simply following probabilities without being certain he is right.

Here is a typical case. West leads a heart and South sees that the slam is cold if he can hold himself to one club loser instead of two.

Ordinarily, to accomplish this goal, declarer would draw trumps and lead a club from dummy to his queen. If the queen held, he would finesse the ten on the return, hoping to find West with the Jack. If the queen lost to the ace he would likewise finesse the ten, again hoping to find West with the Jack.

However, this method of play is not a rule to be followed blindly. Thus, in the present case, declarer should first sound out the situation by winning the heart with the ace, drawing three rounds of trumps, cashing the king of hearts, and ruffing a heart.

From these plays he learns that West started with five hearts and three diamonds. (Declarer also knows from the bidding that West has the ace of clubs.) South's problem now is to figure out how many spades West has, for, if he can do that, he will know how many clubs West has.

The nine missing spades are far more likely to be divided 3-6 than 2-7, so declarer tentatively credits West with three of them (and hence two clubs). Accordingly, after cashing the K-A of spades, South leads a club to the king, which holds, returns a club and ducks when East produces the nine. West is forced to win the nine with the ace—and virtue is handsomely rewarded.

Trudeau And Allies Defuse 'Bomb'

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau defused a potentially explosive confrontation between police, trade unionists and youthful protesters Wednesday night with diplomacy, several decibels of rock music and reinforcements from Ottawa—his wife Margaret.

Successful avoidance of a clash between the demonstrators and police—both sides appeared ready for one-capped a hectic day of barnstorming through the city, during which more than 25,000 Hamiltonians had a look at the prime minister.

Two hours before Mr. Trudeau was to attend a civic ball commemorating Hamilton's 125th anniversary, about 1,000 trade unionists turned up in front of the Sheraton Connaught

Hotel with placards and banners. The labor people were joined by 200 more demonstrators they didn't want—young members of the League for Socialist Action and the Young Socialists, protesting everything from abortion laws to the war in Vietnam.

The union demonstration was organized by the Hamilton Labor Committee for Jobs, a group representing a dozen major unions with a combined membership of more than 50,000.

HAD BRIEF READY

The committee wanted to submit a brief to Mr. Trudeau protesting the unemployment situation—about 35,000 people are out of work in the Hamilton region, which the committee says is 10 per cent of the labor force.

But Mr. Trudeau turned them down cold when they asked for a face-to-face meeting. While Mr. Trudeau was eating dinner, his aides were working out a compromise to end the demonstration with union leaders.

In the end, committee representatives presented the five-page brief to Paul Trainor, special assistant to Health Minister John Munro, who promised it would find its way to Mr. Trudeau.

That was good enough for the union men. They packed up their placards and headed for home an hour before Mr. Trudeau was scheduled to arrive at the hotel for the civic ball.

"We got what we came here for," said a committee spokesman. "We wanted the prime minister to see the brief and we were promised that he would."

The spokesman said the union demonstrators had been warned not to provoke any incidents with police, "but if trouble had come, we were ready to handle it."

SOCIALISTS OUT TOO

As the unionists left, the Young Socialists, who came close earlier to tangling with police, were waving red banners, placards and a Viet Cong flag, and forming up for another run at the hotel entrance.
